Product Manager Outline

Vexxit is a smart Marketplace that facilitates relationships between Consumers and Professionals in a trusted and transparent environment.

We are building the ultimate Professional Services Marketplace. As a Product Manager, you will be involved in every aspect of the product development process, from defining the product strategy and roadmap to driving release milestones with the technology team. You will be using your skills in strategic thinking, user research, data analysis, requirements definition and release management to create a marketplace that delivers measurable results.

Our dream candidate is customer obsessed, innovative, embraces challenges and an enthusiastic team player who thrives on working closely with managers, designers, developers and marketing We're searching for someone with great talent, can do attitude, and a passion for helping people win through the development of a great product.

Your responsibilities:

- Assist with establishment and alignment of product goals to overall business objectives
- Map realization of product goals to strategic and product development initiatives
- Prioritizing ideas into features and manage through a backlog for the design and development teams based to deliver value
- Communicating, clarifying, and supporting requirements to design and engineering teams to managing the lifecycle of ideas to software release
- Plan releases, sprints, and dependencies by prioritizing backlogs
- Communicate effectively requirements to design and engineering teams
- Determine the technical implications of what is being built, propose alternatives, and challenge scalability and reusability
- Identify and communicate implications of releases to operational teams
- Measure and monitor product development lifecycle to identify opportunities for further efficiency

Requirements:

- Exceptional problem-solving skills
- Passion for building world-class products
- Strong business acumen along with excellent communication and negotiation skills
- Proven track record as a technology enabler bridging the needs between business value and technology solution realization.

- Proven experience evangelizing roadmaps to a variety of stakeholders
- Proven experience interfacing with technology teams to ensure software solutions align with product strategy
- Ability to research, identify and find valuable solutions and new opportunities in the market
- Ability to visually communicate when required via wireframes, diagrams, storyboards etc.
- Business analyst, product experience, technical design or engineering background considered an asset
- Experience using application lifecycle management tools such as Team Foundation Server or JIRA
- Bachelor's degree
- Minimum 3 years of experience in product management

You are energetic, creative, passionate and a highly skilled leader.   A leader that facilitates strong relationships, enables team creativity and drives the highest quality of results. You are comfortable working independently and also in dynamic teams. You take pride in your ability to develop and execute on strategies. Your communication skills ensure that everyone is on top of direction and there is a clear understanding of goals.

Vexxit.com

Send your personal CV to: jc@vexxit.com